

MILK PRICES NOT TO GO UP

That is, immediately, but "Consumers Must Pay the Drivers."

Says Horton.

An agreement between the milk distributors and wagon drivers to arbitrate low wage demands, and the November contract with the Dairywomen's League for $2.60 per 100 pounds, will not mean any immediate increase in milk prices, Leon Horton, President of the Sheffield Express Company said today.

"Every one knows that consumers of milk must pay the wages of the men who deliver it," Mr. Horton said. "We are going to arbitrate the demands of the drivers. The price to the farmer remains unchanged and no increase is under consideration now."

At a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden yesterday 4,000 drivers voted unanimously to submit their claims to an arbitration board of seven members. Three will represent the distributors, three the drivers and the seventh will be an outsider chosen by the other six.

WOOLEN MEN CLEARED.

Indictments Against Men Who Bought Stolen Goods Are Dismissed

Indictments against Harry Brin and Abraham Schindler of the Magnet Woolen Company, No. 173 Green Street, were dismissed by Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions today on motion of Assistant District Attorney Sheridan, who declared there was no evidence that they knew the goods they purchased had been stolen.

Woolens valued at thousands of dollars were stolen from an Old Dominion Lane store in November, 1919, and some of them were traced to the warehouses of the Magnet Woolen Company.
